Mr. Schmidt, 47, a technician for the electronics company Siemens AG, was abducted Jan. 20, three days after assailants kidnapped another West German, Rudolf Cordes, a manager for the chemical company Hoechst AG.

Both abductions were in retaliation for the arrest Jan, 13 at the Frankfurt airport of Mohammed Ali Hamadeh, 22, on charges of carrying explosives.

The United States sought Mr. Hamadeh's extradition for trial on charges of murder and air piracy in connection with the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jet that resulted in the death of a U.S. Navy diver. But Bonn officials refused, saying they would put Mr. Hamadeh on trial in West Germany.

Peace Plan Challenges Effort to Keep Forces in Field

By James LeMoyne New York Times Service TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras ---

The chief military commander of the Nicaraguan guerrillas sat in the debris of the former main rebel border base and acknowledged that he and his men were facing the prospect that their long war could be over.

Worried, pensive and at times rising to his feet to shout his anger about the Sandinist government, which he has fought since 1981, the commander, Colonel Enrique Bermudez, spoke Friday in a long and candid interview, outlining the tough decisions he faces.

It was a rare look at the thinking of one of the most powerful, but least heard, leaders of the rebels, known as the contras. Colonel Bermúdez was an officer in the National Guard of the former dicta-

"The months ahead are critical," Colonel Bermúdez said. "The worst impact of all would be seeing the United States Congress cut off aid to an army fighting for democracy while Cuba and the Soviet Union keep aiding the Sandinists."

Some contra political officials say they are considering returning to Nicaragua to challenge the San-dinists, but with internal divisions and a weak opposition in Nicaragua, their prospects are not bright. As Colonel Bermudez spoke, a handful of rebels dismantled huts and packed radio gear as the heavy rains of the wet season washed over the debris left by a departing guer-rilla army. Cotton-thick clouds dropped over the surrounding mountains, leaving just enough light for a rebel helicopter to squeeze through for a landing.

The contra base, which once housed as many as $,000 rebels, is now in the final stages of abandonment as the guerrillas spread into Nicaragua.

Soviet Gives Rare Tour Of Disputed Radar Site

By William J. Broad New York Times Service ABALAKOVO, U.S.S.R. - The Soviet Union has allowed Western experts to inspect its top-secret giant radar bere, which has been at the center of a beated arms-control dispute since its discovery by American spy satellites more than four years ago.

The administration of President Ronald Reagan maintains that the radar, known as the Krasnoyarsk site after a large city south of Abalakovo, violates the 1972 anti-bal-listic missile treaty. A congressional delegation, including three representatives and four aides specializing in military affairs, spent four hours on Saturday touring the radar's two main structures: an 11-story transmitter and a 30-story receiver. Both buildings were clearly under construction and far from operational. After their inspection, delegation members said that the visit raised serious questions about both the Soviet and the American positions in the arms-violation controversy.

The American group also interviewed several Soviet officials and

Mr. Downey and the other two representatives visiting the Soviet Union, Jim Moody of Wisconsin, and Bob Carr of Michigan, are Democratic members of the bipartisan House of Representatives group that observes the Geneva arms talks.

The U.S. delegation is expected to discuss the visit and its implications on Tuesday in Washington. The Reagan administration says that the radar is designed to track approaching enemy missiles, at the very least for early warning of nuclear attack and probably for help

The key question for the Republican contest thus becomes whether Mr. Bush stumbles in the early party caucuses and primary elections. And the evidence is that he could. Consider some of the possibilities:

wounded in the early going, this is the place his rivals think they can hage him beyond repair. If he dan survives the early tests. New Hampshire may be their last chance to derail him.

In early March the spotlight will swing to the South, where the "Su-per Tuesday" joint primaries will be held. But long before that, Reublican voiers everywhere will have had an opportunity to watch the six contenders compete in televised debates.

The debates are particularly important to those now seen as long ols for the nomination.

Mr. Haig has the least money and organization, and some of the highest negative poll ratings in the field.

But his strategists think that that is largely because voters know him only from crisis situations in the Nixon and Reagan presidencies and have rarely seen him display his sense of humor, business cre dentials, expertise in foreign policy and a resume that rivals or surpasses that of Mr. Bush.

Mr. Haig dissents from Repubi-can orthodoxy on everything from Strategic Defense Initiative to the halanced-budget amendment, and he hopes to exploit those differences.

Mr. du Pont, whose conventional political assets are the next most menger, also aims to stand out from the crowd. He has been more adventurous on issues than anyone else, calling for a phase-out of farm suppons, alternatives to Social Security, and guaranteed jnb training for all. But at the moment, he is clearly in the second tier,

Mr. Robertson is the hardest fur the others to figure out. His allies in the evangelical churches offer him an effective network for recruiting workers, as Michigan showed.

His manager. Marc Nuttle, is modest in his claims of what Mr. governing style and his passion for Robertson will do in Iowa or New the rule of law. Hampshire but says that he can come on strong in the South.

Rival camps think that Mr. Robertson has been hurr by the publicity over his fellow evangelists, Jim and Tammy Bakker, but Mr. Nuttle says Mr. Robertson - clearly the most experienced and effective TV performer in the field - has the most to gain from the debates. After a somewhat stumbling start Mr. Kemp has made himself a competitor, if not yet a threat, to Mr. Bush and Mr. Dole. His efforts to consolidate his position as the conservative heir apparent have been aided by Mr. Laa-It's withdrawal and the emergence the of foreign policy issues - in arms control and Central America - on which he can rally his chosen rightwing constituency.

Mr. Kemp's strategists believe from abortion to economics to nuthat this constituency is a potential majority if he gets to the South as clear energy policy. Senator Albert Gore of Tennesthe main alternative to Mr. Bush.

Press International reported.] Ahmed Allam-Mi, the Chadian ambassador to France, said Monday that Libyan planes had dropped five bombs on Abeche and killed many villagers. The war between Libya and Chad heated up on Aug. 8 when Chadian forces captured Aczou, the main village in the Aozou strip that Libyan forces had captured in 1973. That loss was a major embar-rassment to Colonel, Moammar Gadhafi, the Libyan leader, whose forces retook the town nn Aug. 28. On Saturday, 2,000 Chadian troops crossed into Libya for the first time and demolished the Matan-as-Sarah air base, 60 miles from the internationally recognized border between Chad and Libya. Issa Boukar, a spokesman for the Chadian Embassy in France, said his country had withdrawn its troops from the Libyan air base. Mr. Giraud said France "was not informed" of that raid and that there was no French element that had participated."

Dominique Moïsi, associate di-rector of the French Institute for International Relations, said French officials were trying to play down the French role.

"The decision to destroy the plane is in tune with France's desire not to escalate its role and indeed to keep Libya from escalating the war," said Mr. Moisi.

Korean Workers Protest Plant Closing

SEOUL (Reuters) - Thousands of workers staged rallies on Monday protesting the closure of a shipyard by the giant Hyundai Group, but the government said labor disputes were dwindling across South Korea. Officials of Hyundai, the country's biggest exporter, said about 7,000 workers held a sit-in at their yard at Ulsan in the southeast, demanding a 14-percent pay increase and the release of 23 arrested union leaders. The 23 are among 166 workers facing trial after the police raided company dormitories in Ulsan and a car factory near Scoul owned by the Daewoo conglomerate last week. The Hynndai strikers ended the daylong protest Monday with no major violence but vowed to gather again on Tuesday to press their demands, the officials said.

Hypothermia Used on Siamese Twins

BALTIMORE (WP) - Seven-month-old Siamese twins. joined at the back of the head, have been separated in a 22-hour operation here that involved putting the West German infants into suspended animation to halt bleeding from the operation. Doctors said it was the first time that hypothermia, or lowering body temperature, had been tried in such surgery. If both boys survive, it will also be the first time that twins sharing major blood systems in the brain bave been successfully separated. Doctors at the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions said it would be days before they had any sense of whether either boy would recover and live a normal life.

The operation Sunday involved more than 70 doctors and nurses. The infants, Benjamin and Patrick Binder, shared the major veins and blood draining system directly behind their brains.

Executive Fired in Yugoslav Scandal

BELORADE (Reuters) — The senior management of a Yugoslav company at the center of a multimilior-dollar scandal has been dis-missed, official press reports said Monday. The issuing by Agrokomerc of up to $500 million worth of false promissory notes has rocked the country's banking sector, already struggling to cope with Yugoslavia's $20 billion foreign debt. Agrokomerc is a state-owned agricultural-industrial company that employs 13,500 workers and handles food exports to 22 countries.

The company's chief executive, Fikret Abdic, and his management team have been dismissed, the reports said. The Tanjug news agency reported Saturday that the police had asked the Federal Assembly. (parliament) to waive the immunity from criminal prosecution Mr. Abdic enjoys as a member of the body.

Troubled U.K. Union Group Meets

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuters) - British trade union leaders began their annual meeting Monday, divided on industrial relations and on how to halt declining membership under what they regard as a hostile Conservative government,

The meeting of the Trades Union Congress was the first since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, whose government has enacted laws de-signed to curb union power, was re-elected in June. Political analysts said union leaders, faced with five more years under Mrs. Thatcher, had to try to improve their image.

A recent opinion poll said most British unions were seen by the majority of their members as out of touch with the needs of the rank and file and too closely linked to the opposition Labor Party.

Gandhi Shuffles Party Secretaries

NEW DELHI (AFP) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi replaced five of six general secretaries in his Congress (1) Party on Monday, a party spokesman said. A sbuffle of the senior levels had been expected ollowing electoral defeats and mounting dissidence within a party battered since April by a wave of corruption scandals.

The spokesman, G.K. Moopanar, said Mr. Gandhi had accepted the resignations of Bhagwat Jha Azad, A.K. Antony, R.L. Bhatia, N.K. Sharma and Najma Heptullah to clear the way for a reorganization.

Mr. Moopanar, the only general secretary to be retained, said the five were replaced by Oscar Fernandez, Ghulam Nabi Azad, N.C. Chatur-vedi, K.N. Singh and Ram Rattan, All but Mr. Fernandez are Congress (1) members of Parliament.

The Monetary Challenge

ing again. Cynics would equate their mileage with the volatility of exchange rates. An official briefcase and a worried look speak volumes to the money markets.

Recent months have not been happy for those who seek exchange rate stability. Despite support from central banks, an increase in American interest rates and rising tension in the Gulf (which would normally strengthen the dollar because it is thought a safe haven in times of trouble), it has been hard to keep the dollar above 1.80 Deutsche marks and 140 yen. the supposed low points for those who believe in exchange rate targets. Last February's undertaking in Paris to try to keep currencies roughly stable after a other opens up. Japan recendy tried to stop bewilderingly bumpy ride (in two years the dollar fell nearly 50 percent against its West German and Japanese counterparts) has proved fiendishly hard.

This volatility exerts a major depressive effect on the world economy. Exporters and importers can cover themselves by forward transactions. But what firm is going to make bold long-term investment decisions - on which future prosperity and growth depend - in total ignorance of the value of its currency against that of the world's largest economy

The game has changed for those responsible for maintaining order in the exchange markets. The fixed rate system inaugurated after World War II proved unworkable, after a successful quarter of a century, for two reasons. First, private flows of funds back and forth across frontiers increased hugely as corporate liquidity grew, exchange controls were relaxed (because they proved unenforceable) and technology created round-the-

International finance officials are travel- clock trading - the exchange market on which the sun never sets. Second, the disciplines which more or less impelled governments to avoid vast extravagance broke down, with America emerging as a persis-tent deficit country. Unlike its smaller brethren, the United States has been able to run trade deficits that would have brought others to their knees because of the size and sophistication of its capital market. So discipline went out the window.

If exchange rates are no longer to be unruly and unruled, who should rule what? Attempts to tame the animal spirits of private operators appeal to some, but the record and the prospects are poor. As soon as one channel of disturbance is blocked, anits banks from speculating against the dollar through moral suasion - the old-fashioned practice of jawboning. The fruits may be short-lived if profit considerations point the other way, and the likelihood of other countries succeeding in this course is slight. If governments want to control the present muddle, they have to control themselves and in particular their mutually contradictory macroeconomic poli-cies. Discipline is unlikely to be restored without changing the existing but virtually nonexistent rules of the International Monetary Fund, so as to impel deficit countries to curb their extravagance and surplus countries to acknowledge their responsibilities. A very small start has been made with the European Monetary System, but the world needs to think bigger. It is time to restart the talks on systemic reform that broke down with the first oil shock. This month's IMF meeting should launch a new attack.

Why Spend on Allies?

Dear Donald Trump;

Your recent letter to the American people, printed as an advertisement, makes a compelling case: America spends billions protecting friends and allies who are thus freed to build up their economies while the military burden sinks America's. That view needs airing because it is widely shared - and because it rests partly on shaky foundations.

The figures support your case. The United States spends about 6 percent of its gross national product on defense, while its West European allies average about 3 percent and Japan 1 percent, Meanwhile, American economic and political power is slipping, especially reladve to those allies.

But whose interests are Americans really protecting? The United States was not ensnared into its military commitments by wily allies out to best her economically. From post-World War II alliances to recent commitments in the Gulf, the choices have been made with American interests in mind.

Your letter assumes that others share these interests and read situations just as America does. If they were not allowed to freeload. you imply, they would do whatever we are doing, or pay us to do it. Yel West Germans and Japanese bave their own perspectives.

Also, a pillar of U.S. policy has been to teach these nations to focus on economic stability rather than military power. Would we like to see a resurgence of nationalist military fervor in Japan and Germany? And surely Gulf nations like Saudi Arabia have to contribute more. But they cannot stand up without the United States, nor can the U.S. position in the Gulf bold up without them. None of this precludes the need for sharing the burdens more equitably or for reducing the American burden where possible. Europeans, who supply 90 percent of the ground troops in Western Europe and 75 percent of the tanks and combat aircraft, have long been pressed to do more. As for Japan, increased military spending is not the only or perhaps even the best way for it to meet its international responsibilities. Increasing its foreign aid to strategically important countries could be more helpful.

Still, as you suggest, America does need to work on matching commitments to current resources. Without its past proportion of global production and wealth, it continues to maintain the old commitments, and even make new ones. The buge resulting deficits do not inspire emulation. Worse, when America overextends itself it weakens its ability to meet vital commitments. Those surely include the commitments to the allies whose economic health makes Americans like you, Mr. Trump, feel unjustly used. Yet it is better to make adjustments in the balance of burdens out of a clear understanding of underlying U.S. commitments, and not out of resentment. The terms of the friendships may often be maddening, but Americans surely like having those friends. - THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Deregulation Isn't to Blame

WHY are airline fares skyrocketing in America? W Why is service going to the dogs? Why can't some pilots find the right runway or even the right airport? Why are some planes flying into the flight paths of others? The fashion is to blame deregulation. Yet the problem lies not in deregulation but in the Reagan administration's failure to enforce antitrust laws and build up safety regulation and oversight. The initial results of the 1978 deregulation of routes, rates and entry were impressive. The number of scheduled carriers nearly tripled. Fares fell 13 percent on average, in inflation-adjusted terms. The proportion of travelers flying on low-cost discount fares rose from 48 to 80 percent by 1982. And air travel expanded at significantly bigher annual rates. Wby, then, the current disenchantment? Deregulation is not synonymous with laissez-faire anarchy. If regulations barring entry to the industry are dropped and price regulation is abandoned, then they must be replaced with another regulatory mechanism - compe-tition. And this requires that government enforce antitrust laws so that competition is not subvened by

The small independent airlines have taken the brunt of the cruicism. In short, U.S. deregulation appears to be backfiring on the traveling public. waits helplessly for a gate to clear? What the public deserves is safe air transportation. That means adequate, reliable service at a fair price, from an economically bealthy industry. It will take the reinstitution of government supervision to ensure that the public gets that kind of airline service. There is, after all, something called "the public interest.

- Hobart Rowen in The Washington Past.

Enforce the Antitrust Laws

A IRLINE deregulation was never meant to restrict enforcement of the antitrust laws. If the Departwatchdog powers under Article 89 of the Treaty of Rome to prevent the major airlines from entering further pool arrangements designed to keep ment of Transportation begins to enforce these laws, it will still be possible to enjoy the benefits of deregulation without suffering the costs of uncontrolled monopoly pricing. Some suggestions: Force divestiture of computer reservation systems that give a preference to the airlines that own them; require that the frequentflyer mileage awarded by an airline be transferable among consumers; stop approving mergers among major carriers. Re-regulation is not the answer.

They are more worried about their own economies than any imminent Soviet threat; many fear that their own military buildups might spur a Soviet response. In any event, they don't have the power to counterbalance Moscow. Only the United States does.

Donald J. Trump, 41, is a Manhattan real estate developer who placed full-page advertisements in major American newspapers last week to air his foreign policy views.

Flat Wages in America

American workers used to be able to assume a rising standard of living; each year would be better than the last. They can no longer be so confident. Wage rates in the society are flat and have been for some time. The ouestion is whether this is an aberration or the new permanent condition. Although masked by other numbers pointing to prosperity, the change has been dramatic. From 1947 to 1967 the average hourly wage adjusted for inflation - the value of an average hour's work - rose by 58 percent. Since 1968 the figure has been essentially unchanged. It rose until the first oil shock of 1973-74, then fell back; today it is precisely where it was in 1968.

Families have compensated. More women are working and having fewer children, so that the ratio of workers to dependents has changed. The elderly are better supported by Social Security; wages fell behind inflation in the 1970s, but benefits were indexed and did not. Thus the family and per capita income figures do not reflect what has happened.

But while families are gaining, workers are spinning their wheels. According to econo-mists Frank Levy and Richard Michel, the average 30-year-old man in 1949 had an income of $12,000 in 1984 dollars. By the time he was 40, his income in these inflationadjusted terms exceeded $18,000, and by the time he was 50 it was more than $24,000. The pattern continued through the 1960s. The average man who was 30 in 1959 had an income of nearly $17,000 then, and more than $25,000 by 1969. But then it fell apart. The typical 30-year-old man in 1973 had an income of just over $23,000; 10 years later it had not changed. The typical 40-year-old had just over $28,000 in 1973; 10 years later be had lost ground and was earning $24,100. No one knows all the reasons. The oil shocks played a major part, accelerating inflation while reducing and creating enor-mous shifts in demand. Loss of markets to lower-wage competitors abroad has also been a factor, as may be the continuing shift to a service economy. There has been a crowding of the labor force through the simultaneous entry of the baby boomers and more women workers. This may have helped bid down the price of labor; it also means that a greater percentage of workers are young and still on the lower rungs of the wage ladder. Atop all this tumult, to some extent reflecting it, has been a decline in productivity. For many reasons, which are much debated, average hourly output is not rising as fast as in the past - and that is the final determinant of standard of living. The interesting thing about most of these factors is how litde they seem to have to do with the remedies of conventional politics, Bills are pending in Congress to raise the minimum wage, which has not been raised since 1980. We are in favor, as a matter of simple justice, but it is only an ameliorative device; no one should think it will transform the economy. So also with the workable parts of the trade bills that the two houses have passed. The worst news for American workers may not be weak wages but how litde is understood about how to strengthen them. -THE WASHINGTON POST.

The Reagan administration has tolerated the most widespread merger movement in the industry's history. Ideological zeal has contributed to safety problems. Safe ty regulations should receive increased attention in a deregulated environment, but the administration seems a hostage to an extremist notion of laissez faire.

- Walter Adams, professor of economics at Michigan State University, and James W. Brock, associate professor of economics at Miami University in Ohio, writing in The New York Times.

The Public Interest Loses

WALTER Adams and James W. Brock (see previous item) contend that the airlines mess does not arise because of deregulation but because of the Reagan administration's failure to enforce antitrust laws. To me, that is a distinction without a difference. The important point is that the system is not working now, whereas it did when the government was able to impose certain economic, safety and service requirements. Deregulation was supposed to promote bealthy com-petition. It has done the reverse: A few big carriers

- Severin Borenstein, associate professor of econor ics at the University of Michigan and a consultant to America West Airlines, in The Washington Post.

The Public Requires Proof

T AST year the conservative Heritage Foundation and the liberally oriented Brookings Institution both issued reports saying that the goal of airline deregulation — to engender competition, helping consumers both on service and on ticket prices — had been substantially achieved, and deregulation had saved air travelers $6 billion a year. But in recent months it has become obvious that deregulation is not an unmitigated success story. Industry spokesmen say that fares are leveling off and the big airlines now in existence will begin competing in service. Maybe they are right. But if the proof is not forthcoming in the next few months, the logic of re-regulation will become overwhelming,

The plan provides for a cease-fire in Central American conflicts by Nov. 7, along with implementation of agreements on the cessation of all foreign assistance to rebel movements, amnes ty for rebels who lay down arms and internal democratization. The broad objective is direct negotiations among all the parties, including the United States, Cuba and Nicaragua.

Given the sterility of its anti-Sandinist efforts in the last seven years, the White House could profit from constructively responding to the mutual disengagement ploy implicit in Mr. Gorbachey's move.

As Viron P. Vaky, former assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, wisely remarks in the current issue of Foreign Policy: "The Sovier Union may well have no desire to challenge the U.S. on its own turf; in fact recent indications, such as the decision to sharply reduce oil shipments to Nicaragua, suggest that Moscow may wish to distance itself from the Sandinists. If that is the case, Washington should make it easier for Moscow to disengage, not harder."

President Reagan, however, appears determined to make it harder for everybody to discngage because of his ideological concerns. Thus he forced out Ambassador Philip Hahib, his special Central American envoy, for advocating immediate talks with Managua after the unveiling of the peace plan. (The United States broke off direct negotiations with Nicaragua Iwo years ago). While the Sandinists have already

White House agrees to participate. Explanations for the Soviet attiiude are easy to discern. First, the Sandinist revolution, in ts ninth year, is clearly not a Marxist-Leninist success. Thus Nicaragua is no longer an inviting strategic in-vesiment for the Russians, who nowadays are much more careful about using their resources.

Second, since Mr. Gorhachev is entering into a new relationship with Washington with the expected agreement on the mutual removal of intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe and Asia, he does not need a potentially confrontational situation

W ASHINGTON — I want to be a men and here and h to the brass ring of politics, the constitution relegates these naturalized citizens to second-class status.

The "natural born" phrase unfairly burdens children of Americans born abroad (as in did Governor George Romney in 1968): it casts a shadow on any, candidacy: If elected, the president-elect surely would face a court challenge.

That means Senator Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota is blocked from advancement because he was born in Berlin, and Senator Lowell Weicker of Connecticut because he was born (of American parents) in Pans. Governor John Sununu of New Hampshire, whose U.S. parents were in Havana when he was born, and Governor Madeleine Kunin of Vermont. bern in Zurich and naturalized 40 years ago, can forget about higher office. Other citizens distinguished in their fields silently bridle at their political limitation. The economist and former Am-bassador John Kenneth Galbraith is our as a potential president because he is from Canada; Henry Kissioger, under whom two U.S. presidents served, is from Germany, and Felix Rohatyn, financial savior of New York, is from Austria.

My newly retired colleague, James Reston, could never entertaio secret dreams of power because he was born in Scotland, and my new Op-Ed Page colleague, A.M. Rosenthal, cannot occupy incoln's bedroom because he came from Canada. (My other columnist sidekicks and I are constitutionally elcan bnt do not expect lightning to strike.)

Why do Americans allow Jay's outmoded suspicion to dry up their talent pool and insult their most valuable imports? A reasonable residency requirement is understandable, as is the 35-year age requirement. But the dead hand of the present should not lay on the future; Let tomorrow's voters decide who they want to be their president.

A few years ago, Senator Thomas Ea-gleton dropped a bill in the hopper to amend the constitution: "A person who isa naturalized citizen of the United States and who is otherwise eligible to hold the office of president or vice president shall be eligible to hold such offices after being a United States citizen for 11 years."

The proposed resolution died in committee, demonstrating that the Congress is loath to rise above nativism on this issue. The other route provided by the framers to change the constitution is through the states and a new convention. On to Con Con II! . The New York Times.

Regarding "Pursuing Fads in Jopan" (Aug. 19) by Clyde Haberman:

f am writing you by hand because I could ooi wait uotil my return to the United States to comment on this shockingly misleading article. It grossly mis-characterizes Japan as a country of consumers with more money to spend than is reasonable to maintain a decent living standard. As an American traveling and visiting friends in Asia, I can only compare their standard of living to mine. By that yardstick, there is little doubt in my mind that the living standard in Japan is far. far below that in America.

The author refers to expensive imported Scotch and to ice from the Antarctic, implying that these are typical objects of Japanese frivolity. Yet these are not commonly purchased items: the typical Japanese does not have great nounts of money to spend on luxuries. Most businessmen and travelers know that living in Japan is expensive, especially in the Tokyo area. What many do not know is that salaries are not commensurately bigher. A foend of mine, an investment banker for Merrill Lynch in Tokyo, earns a flat salary of about $40,000. In New York, investment

A SPEN. Colorado - By September, air traveler to have bis luggage lost. As our balloon floats over elk herds marks previously made by schooling on children, parents seek ways to insinuate edification into entertainment. Thus the three Will children recently found themselves hanging beneath a hot-air balloon in a wicker basket so small they could oot dodge a little learning. Ballooning, like skiing and sailing,

It is luxurious because it removes the burden of decision: You go whither the wind tends. Best of all, ballooning gives dad an opportunity to be didactie to a captive audience.

Ballooning is a booming pastime, as it should be (say I, as the children's eyes begin to glaze) in the U.S. Constitution's bicenteonial summer. Ballooning captured the Founding Fathers' magination as an expression of freedom. Joho Jay. Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and bis son Joho Quincy saw some of the earliest balloonists while negotiating the Treaty of Paris in 1783. George Washington, a better president than meteorologist, foresaw a day when "our friends at Paris will come flying through the air instead of ploughing the ocean."

At first, would-be balloonists believed it was smoke itself, oot heat. that pushed ashes up chimneys, so they fueled fires beneath balloons with old shoes and rotten meat. Then when they got their physics straight, they had a moral problem to solve

In 1783, a balloon made a sheep, a duck and a rooster the planet's first air travelers. Man would not be next, but Louis XVI wanted to send up a crimi-nal, in case flight proved unhealthy for humans. However, a marquis persuaded the king that the honor of succeeding where Icarus had failed belonged to the gently born. So on Nov. 21, 1783, two gentlemen made mankind's first flight, rising from the Bois de Boulogne in front of Louis, Marie Antoinette and 400,000 others - approximately the population of Paris, Two years later, in a balloon using "flammable air," or hydrogen, one of the two gentlemen became the first person to die in an air crash.

On June 24, 1784, Edward Warren, 13-year-old Baltimorean, went aloft in a tetbered balloon, thereby becoming the first American to take flight from the republie's soil. It is not recorded if he also was the first American expansion in U.S. history, particularly guised dismay of the children, their questions elicit yet another freshet of information from father. He says that it is a tradition to have wine and food at the end of a balloon voyage. The tradition reflects the fact that when early balloons, belching smoke, landed unannounced on farmers' fields, the farmers often concluded, not unreasonably, that the balloons were Satan's devices. The farmers attacked the balloons, and sometimes the balloonists, with pitchforks. So balloonists carried food and drink with which to appease the farmers. Such is mankind's inclination to put all inventions at the disposal of Mars. that even the silent, graceful balloon has been pressed into war service. Balloons were used for surveillance of enemy lines during the Civil War. They were used for getting passengers and mail in and out of Paris when the city was besieged by German forces in 1870. Furthermore (a word that causes the children to flinch) in late 1944 and early 1945 the Japanese launched thousands of bomb-carrying gas balloons high into the jet stream over Japan. Only 285 made the voyage, scattering along the coast of the United States and Mexico. On May 8, 1945, six Oregonians discovered one and became the only people killed on Ameri-

Warming to his theme, father is about to explain the cultural importance of the fact that until construc-tion of the Eiffel Tower, balloonists were the only people who had seen a eity from bigher than the highest rooftop. But father subsides, knowing that all information bounces harmlessly off the invisible shells that surround children in summer, protecting them from mental improvement. However, if around Labor Day you

FOCUSING ON YOU

Listening to you. Learning from you. For 38 years. You've helped us develop our philosophy: to keep your needs in focus.

The formula: By ensuring that the overall success of your stay results from all the httle things done well.

You want a good night's sleep, of course. A report typed at the eleventh hour. The security of knowing that telex, translation and courier service are at your command. You want a simple meal in your room after a long, hard day. And fine cuisine to entertain your clients when you choose. The ease of No Stop Check-Out'n, when you're in a hurry to catch a flight.

You don't want to be victimized by high surcharges on currency exchange and long-distance telephone calls. We keep these in focus as well.

You sometimes want the club-like atmosphere of Executive Floors, where you can conduct your business dealings calmly and efficiently. +3 of our hotels answer this need.

After several frustrating delays

The complex exchange talks also briefly enhanced the stature of UNITA and Mr. Savimbi, who found themselves elevated to a negotiating status equal to that of five national governments. Mozambique's minister of cooperation. General Jacinto Veloso, played a key role after he visited R.F. Botha's home in Cape Town three weeks ago. His mission was to patch up relations between the two countries following allegations in Maputo that South Africa was indirectly responsible for a massacre by rightiss guerrillas of hundreds of civilians in Mozamhique in July. France's prime minister. Jaques Chirac, also had a pivotal role, using his government's influence in Mozambique to establish a negotiating link with the Marxist government in Luanda, South African diplomatic sources said. Mr. Chirac acted after President François Mitterrand of France made a major diplomatic issue out of the imprisonment of Mr. Albertini in April, BANGKOK - Widespread anger at a Burmese government deci-sion to invalidate much of the country's money has sparked street protests, the first reported there in 3 years, travelers and diplomats said Monday.

They said the Burmese were shocked by the announcement Saturday that notes in denominations of 75 kyats, 35 kyats and 25 kyats, estimated to make up 80 percent of the currency, were no longer worth anything.

The official rate of exchange is about 6.6 kyats to the dollar, but black-market rates range from 40 to 80.

"People are shaken up," said a Burmese traveling through Bang-kok. "They are wondering if this is going to break down the economy to simple harter trade because they can't trust money."

Diplomats based in Rangoon said more protests could erupt unless the government, which closed schools and universities through out the country on Sunday, acted to redeem the bills.

Schools that were closed indefinitely included Rangoon University and the Rangoon Institute of Technology, where a student protest movement began.

Official sources in Rangoon said the action by the military-dom ed government was aimed at blackmarketeers and the use of counterfeit bank notes by rebel groups.

Associate Professor Nilufer Gole of the same university said: "When people said 'no,' they showed that they wanted stability and peace. When they said yes,' they showed they are in favor of freedom."

The issues are important to Turks and outsiders alike. Since the founding of the modern Turkish Republic in 1923 by Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, this land spanning Asia and Europe has sought to em-ulate Western ideals, thereby offering itself for judgment by Western standards of democracy and respect for human rights.

Making a Mark In Technopop

By Mike Zwerin nternational Hyrald Tribuna DARIS - Ryuichi Sakamoto Cannot figure out why Japan is able to export just about everything except rock music. He's been asking himself that for 10 years. ever since he began to sell millions of records in his native country. The best explanation he can come up with is this: "People in the Japanese musie business have closed minds. Big manufacturing companies work hard for exports. But musicians and music executives. they think only of the domestic market."

Seiji Ozawa and jazz musicians like mark in the West, but not one maported reggae, Brazil exported bossa nova. Africa exported just about everything and West Germany is given credit for technopop. VENICE - Even the gondolas seemed to be swaying in time on the moonlit Grand Canal as Bobby Short entenained the international guests at a spar-kling dinner-dance organized by Save Venice Inc. an American group dedicated to preserving the art trea-sures of this city.

While the strains of the Rodgers and Hart song "Manhattan" drifted out over the water, more than 400 guests dined and danced in the frescoed ballroom of the Palazzo Pisani Moretta. Noteworthy names from both sides of the Atlanue included Margaret Barry Ryan and the Contessa Christiana Brandolini d'Adda, co-chairwomen of the party. Barbara John-son, Erica Jong, Gore Vidal, Evangeline Bruce, Prince Amyn Aga Khan and Hubert de Givenchy.

The purpose of the $1.000-a-person affair was to finance the restoration of the marble facade of the Renaissance Santa Maria dei Miracoli church. Save Venice Inc., a 15-year-old philanthropy, is based in New York and Boston. The party was underwritten by Miguel Cruz, the fashion designer.

The grand event crowned three days of cultural programs and social activities organized by Save Venice. The program, called "The Regatta Week Gala" because it coincided with the historic Venetian boat race held Sunday, would have staggered even the most seasoned sophisticate, if only because of the 90-degree temperatures scorching the city all week.

But this was not your average tennis shoe-clad tour group. No one bothered to pack a Michelin guide. long led a group on a tour of the Jewish ghetto while Vidal, in a palazzo in another part of the city, showed a group of 75 part of his Venice documentary, "V. on V." (for Vidal on Venice), and entertained them with his knowledgeable commentary and droll asides.

Museum and gallery directors like Pontus Hulten of the Palazzo Grassi gave private tours of their collections. Restored churches became the backdrop for evening events like the concert in the Church of the Pietà by the mezzo soprano Margarita Zimmermann, Guests were whisked to Thursday's gala by a fleet of motoscafi, the eity's motor launches, which set off from docks at three of the leading hotels in town, the Danieli, the Cipriani and the Gritu Palace.

Passengers got a glimpse of the Palazzo Moretta long before they disembarked. Candles flickered in the windows and a dim yellow glow from dozens of is considering moving to either chandeliers in the ballroom washed o London or New York. "The Texans bave now arrived " The Baronessa Sandra di Portanova, originally from Dallas, followed close behind, elegantly lowering the room temperature in a navy gown with a high net neckline and ornate beading at the waistline. Many of the guests lingered before dinner, sipping Champenne Most semical intent on setting simpling

What many were secretly hoping was that the prince would slick his tongue out again at his wife, Princess Michael of Kent, across the neuron. subracing to grave areas orcbestra into several small groups that played before dinner, there was pleasant background music coming from several corners of the palazzo.

For some, the week was a nostalgic journey. The ewelry designer Kenneth Jay Lane, between lamentations about the heat - Gothic mullioned windows don't take air-conditioning units - said he was staying in the same palazzo be had occupied on his first trip to Venice in 1959.

"A little symmetry in life is a nice thing," he mused, as the orchestra launched into Elvis Presley's "Jail House Rock."

Lady Thorneycroft, at dinner in the ballroom, where small hand-beld fans put at each guest's place seemed to keep a livelier pace than the music, looked pleased to be back where she spent part of her youth.

"All my childhood friends are in this room," she said, looking at a sea of faces that included the Viscount Norwich, president of the Venice in Peril Fund and author of many books on Venetian history; Baron Vittorio de Nora; a Milan industrialist and the Marchese and Marchesa Alberto Berlingieri of Venice. So this is like coming home to me."

At 2 A.M., the last motorboat pulled up to the pier. The party's die-hards, with the dirty hems, witted hairdos and crooked bow ties of people who really had a good time, piled on board to be taken bome. One partygoer collapsed into the back seat of the boat, let out a long sigh and said: "I feel like someone just stuck a pin in me. I'm deflating."

The Audi 100 CS quattro. What more could you want?

What qualities do you look for in a touring saloon? Reliability, durability, comfort, performance? And the technology to go with it? This, and a good deal more, is exactly what you get with an Audi 100 CS quattro. And all wrapped up in an elegant package.

First of all you get all the quality that goes to make an Audi 100 an Audi 100. Its fully galvanized body offers the best long term anti-corrosion protection available. Its five-cylinder injection engines, for example, produce performance plus.

They give the Audi 100 CS quattro not only plenty of sting but also the sophistication you would expect of a car of this class. Its finely tuned running gear and quattro permanent four-wheel drive give the car even greater active safety and better performance attributes. All designed to make driving that much more fun. Because quattro drive means superior handling, not only in rain and snow. But also on dry roads. Why not go for a test drive with a difference.

Ethical Questions Explode With the French 'Big Bang'

By JACQUES NEHER Special to the Herald Tribune

ARIS --- With its version of London's "Big Bang" finan-Particle With its version of London's big bang man-cial deregulation looming, the Paris Bourse is moving quickly to establish some basic rules of the game, and in the process, polish its image before the international financial community. Brokers, dealers and regulators in recent months have been trying to create a code of conduct that will guide them through a maze of day-to-day ethical questions. This discussion covers everything from clear-cut issues like insider trading, to grayer areas, such as managing the sometimes contradictory roles played by brokers when they both trade in the market and manage investors' money. Separately, but not unrelated, are current efforts t the security of the be MATIF financial futur ket in Paris by ins strict standards - and first time, penalties. The new limits, expected to be approved this week, will make it more difficult for one of the 100 clearing-huse members to control the futures market. The standards will also limit speculation by members or their clients not having sufficient resources to absorb possible losses.

The call for ethical standards at the Bourse is seen, in part, as an acknowledgment by the French profession that there might indeed be some truth to suspicions of impropriety within their ranks. These suspicions, often whispered by their counterparts in London, stem from the "private club" nature of the Bourse — an institution that has allowed only a select group of Paris brokers to

However, new legislation, expected to be passed this autumn. will break this monopoly progressively over the next five years. The bill will allow banks or other financial institutions to buy into the capital of the 46 Paris brokers beginning next year. By 1992, outside financial institutions, including foreign banks and brokers, would themselves be able to apply for Bourse admission. It is this Big Bang a la française that is motivating the new wave through the European markets," said Angus McNeilage, who watches the French market for James Capel & Co. in London. "The French have their Big Bang coming up. They have to put their house in order before that," he said, "If they want to be international, they have to act by international standards."

THE SEARCH for a code of ethics was spearheaded early this year by Yves Le Portz, president of the Commission des Opérations de Bourse, the organization charged with regulating the market. Noting that France's financial markets in recent years have experienced "a profound transformation" pos-ing "great ethical problems," Mr. Le Portz called upon Gilles Brac de la Perrière, president of Banque Privée de Gestion Financière, to form a committee to explore the problems. Mr. Brac de la Pernière's 12-member study group -made up of bankers, brokers, fund managers, regulators, even a judge yielded its first results in late July. With the benefit of comments from the profession, and further study on specific points this fall, an ethics code should be ready by the end of the year, according to Pierre Fleuriot, the COB's director of research.

The code would detail a host of offenses and specify selfpolicing mechanisms to prevent them, Mr. Fleuriot said, adding that such a code will complement the new law that liberalizes the Bourse and breaks the monopoly held by the Paris brokers. A preview of the code can be derived from the committee's July

"As the proceedings went along, we realized this was out-standing publicity for German beer. The Reinheitsgebot, which was little known, became a synonym for first-class, quality beer. We are quite happy about it." Mr. Asche said the brewers, who had fought the issue tooth and nail since the European Community took the matter to court in 1984, did so because "it was purely a health question." After the decision, West Germany's brewers agreed to remain true to the Reinheitsgebot," he said. "But it would have been grotesque not to oppose the sale here of beers containing any of 60 different chemicals, at a time when the World Health Organization is working to reduce the number of preservatives in foods.

GOING TO MIAMI. Exiles, Tourists, and Refugees in the New America By David Rieff. 230 pages. $16.95.

Little, Brown, 34 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. 02106.

Reviewed by Michiko Kakurani

T O Jackie Gleason, Miami was "the sun T and fun capital of the world." To William Jennings Bryan, it was "the only city in the world where you can tell a lie at breakfast that will come true by evening." To Cuban expatriates, it's a new Havana, a city of promises and dreams. To followers of the "Miami Vice" television show, it's the metropolis where Sonny Crockett and Tubbs wear expensive sportcoats to gun down bad guys in prime time. To crime statisticians, it is a hotbed of drug deal-ing and corruption, an American Casablanca or "the new Dodge City." Whereas T.D. Allman argued in a recent book (an undistinguished volume titled "Miami: City of the Future") that Miami summed up all that was good and bad in the American dream, David Rieff contends that Miami is really a foreign city -closer, in many respects, to the Caribbean and Latin American than to the rest of this country. He seems to want to approach Miami with the same mixture of curiosity and anxiety that traditional British travel writers once brought to their peregrina-tions in distant parts of the globe. In fact, he uses a quote from Evelyn Waugh as an epi-graph to the book: "It was fun 35 years ago to travel far and in great discomfort to meet people whose entire conception and manner of expression was alien, now one has only to leave one's gates." It is clearly more difficult, in this day and age, to write the sort of essay that Waugh once specialized in. Mass communication and the spread of American pop culture (from Coca-Cola to Levis) have brought a new measure of homogenization to both distant lands and provincial backwaters.

fands and provincial cackwares. Given these difficulties, it's not surprising that "Going to Miami" runs into a variety of problems. To begin with, much of what Rieff describes as peculiarly Miamian - from airport concession stands to new building pro-jects to crime reports — sounds all too familiar. Worse, his portraits of individuals encountered in Miami (or on the way there) have a tendency to sound hyped-up and patronizing. He de-scribes an Ecuadoran cabdriver as holding the steering wheel in "an obscure Inca grip of death.

When Rieff stops substituting his moods for when Rieff stops substituting its moods for a point of view and delves into his own atti-tudes, the results are considerably more illumi-oating. His account of his trip, as a 16-year-old io 1968, to Havana for the 10th amiversary celebration of the revolution and his subsequeot re-assessment of that visit lend a personal, engage dimension to the narrative, and these passages perhaps explain why the most compelling sections in this book are devoted to Miami's Cuban community and its relationship to the city at large.

Rieff notes, for instance, that "parks and monuments in Miami often bear the same names as similar parks and monuments in Havana and Sannago de Cuba" and that "these monuments still exude a living aura, the kind of power monuments used to exude before they were superseded, in the public spaces of America, by the incomprehensible geometry of abstract sculpture." He observes that, while Miami may look like Latin America when viewed from the north, it still looks "like Switzerland when viewed from the south." And he points out that many liberal Miamians blame the Cubans for having "transformed South Florida from a forward-lonking, politically fib-eral place, to the most politically reactionary community anywhere in America."

In such sections, where he combines report-age with critical assessment, Rieff distin-guishes himself as intelligent and observant.

VILLACH, Austria - Stephen Roche, the Irish bicycling star, has joined the great Eddie Merckx in winning the Tour of Italy, the Tour de France and the world championship in the same cason

By winning the championship road race here Sunday, Roche matched the record set by Merckx in 1974. No one else has ever accomplished the triple. "When we reached the last corner I thought, 'If I stay here I'm going to be fourth - I'd better try something," said the Dubliner after the 276-kilometer (17).5-mile) race. "So I jumped. was surprised that I passed the line first.

The other five riders in the breakaway group at the time probably were too. The speed with which Roche swept to the outside and into a clear lead left even defending champion Moreno Argentin of Italy with too little time to catch up. Roche sprinted away from the leading group on the uphill finishing straight to cross the line in 6 hours, 50 minotes and 2 seconds. Argentin edged Spaniard huan Fernandez for the silver medal, both one second behind Roche. The race became competitive on the final lap. Roche led a group of seven riders clear of the in pack on the first of the 12kilometer circuit's two climbs, but they were quickly joined by eight others. On the descent, Guido Wioterberg of Switzerland was the first to try an escape, but failed. Io quick succession on the sec-just 87 pitches Sunday for his third career two-hitter as the Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-1. San Francisco extended its lead in the National League West to 51/2 ames over Houston, matching its biggest margin of the season.

"I may hring Reuschel back tomorrow because he didn't even work up a sweat," said Manager Roger Craig. smiling.

Reuschel is 11-7 overall and 3-1 since the Giants acquired him Aug. 21 from Pittsburgh for Jeff Robinson and Scott Medvin. He did not walk a batter Sunday, and only allowed a pair of fourth-inning hits.

The Giants won for the seventh straight time against Philadelphia and finished 10-2 against the Phillies this year.

Dodgers 3, Mets 2: In Los Angeles, third baseman Howard Johnson's 25th error of the season allowed Danny Heep to score from second in the 16th as the Dodgers broke a nine-game losing streak, their longest since 1973. Johnson fielded Mike Devereaux's grounder but threw it on a bounce past first baseman Keith Hernandez to end a

ART BUCHWALD The Mozzarella Wars

WASHINGTON — In two days Congress will hold hear-ings on one of the great issues of the year. There is, and I do not make this up, an effort to force the United States's frozen pizza makers to use 900 percent more mozzarella dairy cheese in pepperoni or other mean-topped pizza.

A lobbyist who is fighting the mozzarella incursion told me the white hats are the frozen pizza manufaciurers who want nothing more than to sell a nutritious pizza with a less costly sovbean cheese substitute.

The black Buchwald hats, according to the pizza lobbyists, are the dairymen who maintain that the more mozzarella you use in frozen pizza, the more money the government will save in care less about selling surplus dairy subsidies. (The black hats are cheese. But as loyal Americans they talking about $50 million a year, are concerned that the people of which looks good to Congress.1

The frozen pizza lobbyist declares that his people are playing hardhall. They maintain that using real mozzarella on pizza will add to everyone's intake of saturated fat and cholesterol, and they cite the American Heart Association study stating we should all be cating less dairy products if we want to live longer. The black hats say this is baloney and the white hats are just trying to prevent legislation which would make it mandatory for all nonmozzarella pizza to he labeled "cheese substitute." The white hats admit that is ex-

New York Times Service EW YORK — Our appeute for tales of spies and secret agents is unassuaged - if anything, it seems to be growing. "The Fourth Protocol." for example, in which a British agent, played by Michael Caine, pits himself against the KGB. is the latest in a long line of similar movies, but it is unlikely that it will be the last. It comes on the heels of "No Way Out." a film in which much of the action is made to turn on the possible presence of a Soviet mole in the Pentagon.

Meanwhile, among the best sellers, a CIA tbriller. Tom Clancy's "Patriot Games," occupies second place on the current New York Times fiction list, and the nonfiction list is headed by "Spycatcher," the controversial memoirs of the former British intelligence agent Peter Wright. Another new movie, "The Whistle Blower," touches on many of the recent issues raised by the conduct of British intelligence and, indirectly, that of U.S. intelligence. One of its characters, played by John Gielgud. offers a portrait that owes something to the career of Anthony Blunt.

The appeal that the world of spying holds for storytellers is easy to understand. It is a world that already bas a good deal of fiction huilt into it, and spy fiction in turn is bound to reinforce popular interest in the real thing. Still, intelligence services don't exist simply in order to keep the entertainment industry supplied with raw material. What are we to make of the imaginary agents and spies who stalk through popular culture? What are we to make of spy movies? What about their implications? At face value, "The Fourth

Protocol" asks us to believe that a section of the Soviet leadership, in order to strengthen its internal position, is prepared to explode an atomic bomb at a U.S. air base in Britain - making it look like an accident for which the United States will get the blame. As for "No Way Out," it is gon to arrange a cover-up. In practice, of course, no one is likely to treat either movie as a sober representation of reality. The aim of such films is simply to entertain. But works of entertainment don't come and go in a vacuum. They help to color our view of the world, though it is not always easy to decide how, or to what extent. One of the most striking things about "No Way Out" is how little of a political film it actually is. Most of the action may take place at the heart of the political world, but it is an action dominated first hy a whirlwind affair between the hero and the young woman who gets murdered, and then by the consequences of the murder.

Nor does the movie take a particularly harsh view of conventional politics in those scenes where we are given a glimpse of them. There are a few sardonic

Out" is essentially no more political than the average thriller? To a considerable extent, yes. The hero's perilous scrapes and escapes are their own justification, and all he can to thwart him. for much of the film the real hero is the technology.

It is true that the secretary, as played by Gene Hackman, never dtogether forfeits our sympathy. Nor do his public policies reflect his private morals. His principal political concern in the movie is to combat a senator who wants to sponsor a super-weapon. But we are asked to go along. almost casually, with the idea of a secretary of defense who is a killer determined to evade justice. And it is all the more revealing that this should be in a film that has no particular political slant.

"The Fourth Protocol" doesn't involve any comparable reversal of what were once unquestioned possibility of foul play on the part of the authorities, but circumstances slowly compel him to. By the time he has got to the bottom of the affair, he has been led to the front door of Sir Adrian Chapple, played by Gielgud. Chapple is a senior figure in the British establishment. For the last 30 years he has also been a Soviet agent: and though British counter-intelligence has found out about him, be has been left at liberty.

At the beginning of the movie, Bob establishes his credentials as a sensitive young man. He has become convinced by his work that "our secret world is on the same tack as theirs." After that, we bear less and less about the KGB, and more and more about how very bad "our" secret world can be. British security is shown systematically murdering troublemakers - in a manner and on a scale for which there is no known

Frank Jones won't have any truck with treason. What be particularly hates about Chapple is that he is a member of the ruling, class who has managed to bave his cake and eat it, and go on eating it, with complete impunity. For all its polemical thrust and attention to detail, "The Whistle Blower" doesn't offer a particularly coherent view of the world. But it knows what it doesn't like and there is every chance that audiences will find it persuasive. Anyone who isn't persuaded by it. on the other hand, is likely to
